JULOOS-E-AZAA IN LEICESTER MERCURY

Members of Masjid Al Husayn, in Duxbury Road, taking part in the procession in Highfields Hundreds of Shia Muslims took part in a religious procession yesterday to mark Muharram, the month of mourning. Men, women and children dressed in black as a symbolic display of grief over the slaying of the Prophet Mohammed's grandson, Imam Husayn, whose death is thought to be one of the most tragic events in Islamic history. the procession, held in Leicester yesterday afternoon, set off from the Masjid-Al-Husayn Shia Muslim mosque near Uppingham Road, with devotees carrying the banner

"Husayn, The Champion of Truth and Justice".

One of the organisers, Onali Ismail said this year marked the 21st anniversary of the procession taking place in the city. He said: "The Shias of the world have mourned and lamented the death of Imam Husayn year after year since the event of Karbala over 1,300 years ago. "They lament in their love for their Imam but also to keep alive his message of always supporting the truth and never bowing down to falsehood."
